DEATHS.

ADAMS.—Died, on the 14th instant, at her residence, No. 917 east Marshall street, Mrs. ANN ADAMS, in the seventy-sixth year of her age.

Her funeral will take place MONDAY AFTERNOON at 3 o'clock, from the Monumental church. Her friends and Monumental church. Her friends and are invited to attend.

It Appears that the experiments for some time past made in France for ob-taining a satisfactory method of color printing on leather have been so far successful as to open up a prospect of a new and attractive industry. The method, as thus perfected, which is described in its essential details in the columns of L'Industrie Textile, is easily practicable. Mr. John E. Epps and the City Charter.

Mr. John E. Epps and the City Charter.

Editor of The Times:

In reply to your editorial in your issue of yesterday, we cannot fail to thank you, before we proceed, for your fair and magnanimous expressions, for as you say, a "full and free discussion" of the subject now under consideration. We regret that you see so little in our communication that "is important to answer," but this is not our fault, that you do not see the figures we have placed before you. We have informed the readers of The Times that the city of Richmond owes the colossal debt of $7,000,000, one-ninth of the whole assessed value of all the real and personal property of the city, and we have kindly asked The Times to point out to us how the interest can be paid on this immense debt and at the same time to meet all of the city's current expenses. This is the vital problem of the hour, and one that all classes are deeply interested in, for it affects both rich and poor. If the revenue of the city is not sufficient to meet all demands upon it, the dernier remedy for this is an increase of taxes upon all the property in the city. If the landlord has to pay an additional tax upon his property a large per cent. of the laboring classes—we allude to those, of course, who do not own their homes—will have still a greater burden to carry. We fully expected The Times to reply in a satisfactory manger to this interrogatory. It having failed to do so, we here renew our inquiry and we trust The Times will adduce some figures on this subject, that will not only satisfy us, but the public also. The Times alludes to a "supposed financial embarrassment." We say there is no supposition in the case, but it is a stubborn fact that the city is not course, who do not own hardsaffy us, but the public also. The Times alludes to a "supposed financial embarrassment." We say there is no supposition in the case, but it is a stubborn fact that the city is the public also. The Times alludes to a "supposed financial embarrassment." We say there is no supposition in the case, but it is a stubborn fact that the city is not only embarrassed, but that it is overwhelmingly so. We wish for the good of our city that we could look upon it as a fabulous or imaginary statement, but we cannot, for the huge debt of $7.000.000 is alarming and defies the mayor and the rest of the city authorities and nothing but retrenehment and reform, and that of the most economic kind, can stem the current of financial distress and ruin. We do not agree with The Times when it says the "Reform" Council was the Pandora box out of which all these financial evils sprung. There was a very large debt contracted by the city previous to the "Reform" Council coming into power, which the reformers had nothing to do with and cannot in anywise be held responsible. No doubt the action of the Reformers in requiring the City Hall to be built by day labor, instead of by contract, has very largely increased the cost of that building. This was a great error in business principles.

But the Reformers are not in power now, yet the debt is increasing alarmingter all the time. In regard to your com-now, yet the debt is increasing alarmingnow, yet the debt is increasing alarmingly all the time. In regard to your commission or commissions controlling all the heads of the departments, we fall to see that there is one atom of merit in it. The people do not desire to delcenter to commissions what thy can egate to commissions what thy can do at the ballot box themselves; that egate to commissions where egate to commissions and to at the ballot box themselves; that is, to elect all the heads of the departments, and to hold them responsible for every act they perform. We are for electing those officers by the people, and to say the people are not capable and intelligent enough to do this, is a reflection upon the community in which we reside. Under our city charter, amended in March 1861, the people elected all their municipal officers, including the judge of the Hustings Court. We ask if the people are not as capable now, as then, of electing all the city officers? The city had little or no debt them. Now she owes $7,000,000. We respet very much in having to differ with The Times, that has heretofore always stood up manful-in having to differ with The Times, that has heretofore always stood up manfully to chomplon the cause of the people.

Now, we contend, and we can show that the city government is not run on as economical basis, all things considered, as under the charter that existed previous to the one of February, 1857. All of the officers under the old charter were elected by the people. We knew the content of them personally, and they were elected by the people. We knew many of them personally, and they were thoroughly qualified for the places they filled. They were not so well paid for their services as the incumbents of for their services as the incumbents of these places are to-day. But they were efficient and performed every duty connected with their offices sitisfactorily to the people, who had the privilege of electing them. These departments were not then, as you say, they will be if the people elect the heads of them, "huge political bureaux." But to the contrary they were conducted on sound business principles, the heads of them, and employes taking very little part in politics. ployes taking very little part in politics. ployes taking very little place. Now, if so in this you are mistaken. Now, if we are to judge the future by the past, we will not have all this "electioneering" you so much dread, but we will not have a dream the source. have competent heads of these departments, who the people will place in them, and who will be held responsible to the people and not to the mayor, and the City Council. The city government should be controlled by the people from should be controlled by the people from the, office of mayor down, more par-ticularly the heads of the departments. Can you give any good reason why the city attorney, the judge of he Hust-ings Court, police justice, president of the Board of Health, superintendent of almshouse, city engineer, superintendent of water works, superintendent of gas works, should not be elected by the people? If you have any good and cogent reasons for this, will you kindly give them to the public in your columns, so that the people may judge for them-selves whether you are right or wrong. MADISON WARD.

Something Like Jerry. A gentleman connected with a news-paper office in Richmond, in a more or less responsible position, met with an accident last night which caused him he little inconvenience, and afforded his friends much amusement. He got his feet soaked while going to his office in feet soaked while going to his office in the storm, and fearing a severe cold if he sat in wet shoes throughout the hight, he bethought himself of a preveative. Arriving at his office he carefully removed his shoes and stuffed them full of paper. He then took off his zocks, hung them over the gas jet to dry, and tied his feet up in a newspaper. Things moved swimmingly with him until he noticed that his light was much better than usual, and then, alas! he looked up to find both socks in a bright blaze. The fire proved a total loss, and at least one newspaper man in Richmond went home newspaper man in Richmond went home in a cab last night.

John Macadam.

John Loudon Macadam was a County Down surveyor. He wrote several treatises on road-making of a revolutionary character. His proposal was to make passing over them. Joan Macadam.

hardened into a solid mass by the transpassing over them.

For a time he was the subject of much ridicule, but he persevered, and proved his theories in a practical fashion. The importance of the invention was acknowledged by a grant from the government of £10,000, and by the offer of a baronetey, which he declined. He lived to see the world's highways improved by his discovery, and the English language enriched by his name.—McClure's Magazine.

How agreeable is "Ik. Marvel" in this gem of a book from his pen, how quains how humorous, philosophical, pathetic and charming. 2. LAYS OF ANCIENT ROME. By LORD MACAULAY. Beautifully Illustrated.

Macaulay's "Lays" are instinct with the very soul of poetry, and are full of eroic action and energy. Like Scott's spirit-stirring ballads, they have a fine heroic action and energy. Like Scott's spirit-stirring ballads, they have a fine picturesque quality, with graphic breadth and great realistic power of expression. The English, no less than the Roman lays, have the breadth of the battle-field and the sounding notes of the charge to battle. The illustrations of this edition are unique, being executed in delicate outline. 3. A TILLYLOSS SCANDAL, By J. M. BARRIE. A THERTLOSS SCANDAL. By J. M. BARRIE.

A new work by J. M. Barrie, author of the Scottish classic, "The Little Minister," which has had a phenomenal sale, may be expected to whet the literary appetite of every intelligent reader of high-class fiction. In stories of humble Scottish peasant life, Mr. Barrie is on his own special ground. He knows the characteristics of the Scottish weaver and the peasant class as the sailor knows the sea. His sketches are full of a dry, quaint humor, with a strong realism and great force and directness of narrative power. Never, since Scott's day, has Lowland Scottish fiction had such an interpreter or so entrancing a depictor of character, lit up, at the same time, with odd situations and angusing or droll incident.

THE HOUSE OF THE SEVEN GABLES. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNIA. This masterpiece of Hawthorne's is full of the imaginative charm of romance, in felicity of touch, its author is unapproached by any writer since his own ay. The work is, perhaps, the purest piece of poetic prose in all the range of

5. CRANFORD. By MRS. GASKELL.

American literature.

"Cranford," in its charming miniature painting and sketches of character, re-calls the best of Jane Austen's novels. It is a delightful picture of old world social life in an English country village, descriptive of the feelings, habits, opta-ions, character and social conditions of the little community. The story is quiet earnestness and with fine literary aptitudes in the writer. It is beautifully, illustrated. THE COMING RACE. By LORD LYTTON.

"The COMING RACE. By word Lytton, is a clever and ingenious excursion into the realm of science, as the inventive mind of man may find it in the coming time. It presents a curious but fascinating picture of the human environments, as we may see it realized in the next century, when human needs will be served by every resource of electrical and mechanical contrivance—when "the coming race," for instance, will be enabled to exchange domestic helps for insenious and mercury-footed automatons, and have at command every appliance adapted to the marvellously changed social and industrial condition of things. The work is the product of a fanciful but rarely gifted and versatile mind. 7. DREAM LIFE, By IK. MARVEL (Donald G. Mitchell.) There is a prefound mental study in this world-wide American classic. It contains a series of very vivid and picturesque studies of individual cheracter and feeling. It has a fuscinating power over the reader, while its graceful diction charms the literary appreciation and fills the mind with delightful, though sometimes pathetic pictures. S. FRANKENSTEIN; OR, THE MODERN PROMETHEUS. By Mrs. Shelley Like Mrs. Crowe's "Night Side of Nature," Mrs. Shelley's "Frankenstein" is a book every one should read. Its author has great imaginative powers and a weird but original genius. There are passages in "Frankenstein" that appal the mind and make the flesh creep. Once read, the book can hardly ever be for

13. VICAR OF WAKEFIELD. By OLIVER GOLDSMITH. 3. VICAR OF WAKEFIELD. By OLIVER GOLDSMITH.

This beautifully illustrated edition of a famous English classic will increase its attractions for those who recognize the claim it has as essentially a "home book" for the whole reading world. Goldsmith has rhed over the world the tenderest light of his genius, and the pastoral scenes in it are unrivalled, we tenderest said unapproached, by any other writer of fiction. As Sir Walter had aimost said unapproached, by any other writer of fiction. As Sir Walter had aimost said of it, "We read the Vicar of Wakefield in youth and in age, and return Scott said of it, "We read the Vicar of Wakefield in youth and in age, and return to it again and again, and bless the memory of an author who contrives so well to reconcile us to human nature." The book, throughout its fascinating pages, exhibits all the characteristic traits of "Poor Poli"—a genial fancy, and the most diverting simplicity.

diverting simplicity. Hawthorne, the most distinctly American and by far the most popular of our writers, has given the world an undying book in "Twice-Told Tales." The stories were originally contributed to an Annual, published now over fifty years ago, and being subsequently reprinted, are in reality "Twice-Told Tales." They have all being subsequently reprinted, are in reality "Twice-Told Tales." They have all the felicity of expression, as well as the subflety of thought and insight, which are the special charm of the author of "The Scarlet Letter." Each story breathes are the special charm of the author of "The Scarlet Letter." Each story breathes its own air of contemplation, and its effect is heightened by the felicities of style no less than by the imaginative genius of the author. 14. TWICE TOLD TALES. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE.

15. PAUL AND VIRGINIA. By BERNARDIN DE SAINT PIRRE. This idiyilic story, by a classic French writer of the wholesome romantic school, is an immortal book, and has won a place for itself in the homes of almost every people who possess a literature and can appreciate the work of genius. It may, with some literary propriety, be termed an idealized Robinson Crusoe, and it has all the fascination of that renowned work. It is a book that is sure to go down the centuries, charming as well as edifying generations yet unborn.

16. STORY OF AN AFRICAN FARM. By (Raiph Iron) OLIVE SCHREINER.

Under the nom de plume of Raiph Iron, Miss Olive Schreiner has written an extraordinarily powerful story, full of graphic descriptions and the most appealing pathos. The author seems to have followed no recognized mode of romance, pathos. The author seems in fiction for herself. Her novel consists of a series but struck out a new path in fiction for herself. Her novel consists of a series of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrating the wild life of an orchard farm in South Africa, and set of studies illustrations in the 16. 17. LAYS OF THE SCOTTISH CAVALIERS.

By WM. EDMONSTOUNE AYTOUN. By WM. EDMONSTOUNE ATTOUN.

These stirring ballads of Professor Aytoun, of Blackwood fame, have the only rival in Macaulay's "Lays of Ancient Rome." Their popularity is not lessently rival in Macaulay's "Lays of Ancient Rome." Their popularity is not lessently repertore of most elecutionists and platform declaimers. Nor is popular appreparation of most elecutionists and platform declaimers. Nor is popular appreparation affected by the fact that their author, in enshrining in patriotic and clatten affected by the heroic incidents of Scottish history, taken the "Royalist" soul-stirring verse the heroic incidents of Scottish history, taken the "Royalist". side as against that of the "Covenantera."

18. LUCILE. By OWEN MEREDITH (Robert Lord Lytton.) "Lucile," by the second Lord Lytton, late Governor-General of India and British Ambassador to Paris, is a novel in verse, with rhymed couplets, cast somewhat in the mould of Mrs. Browning's "Aurora Leigh." It is an enchanting story, with a strong admixture of romantic thought, plus fertility of invention and brilliant dialogue.

19. DREAMS. (In Press.) By (Ralph Iron) OLIVE SCHREINER. 9. DREAMS. (In Press.) By (Raiph Iron) ULIVE SCREENER.

Though unlike the "Story of an African Farm," "Dreams" has many of the characteristics which made Miss Schreiner's early work famous. The book is both interesting and suggestive, and, besides its high meditative qualities, is rich in interesting and suggestive, and moral problems which this clever writer dethe discussion of those mental and moral problems which this clever writer delights to propound to herself and lay before the thoughtful reader. "Dreams' is manifestly the work of a rare and uncommon mind.

20. BLACK BEAUTY. (In Press.) By ANNA SEWELL. "Black Beauty" is a horse, and the story Miss Sewell so feelingly tells us its autobiography. The tale well deserves its great popularity, for it is wonderfully realistic, and makes a strong appeal to those who love dumb animals and possess the instinct of common hu sanity. It is a book to charm and impress all who have to do with horses, e pecially those who seek to suppress that most senseless of all vices, cruelty animals.
